

Since the 1970s, Austrian photographer Alfred Seiland has traveled across Europe and the U.S., focusing his large-format camera on everyday rural life. Some 25 of his eloquently deadpan documentary images are on view at the gallery Kicken Berlin through November 27, priced from €1,800 ($2,000) to €14,800 ($17,000). The works were previously published in Seiland's acclaimed books of photographs, Austria and East Coast-West Coast. They include Suedsteirische Weinstrasse ("South Styrian Vine Street"), 1992, above, and Stonington, Maine, 1982, right.
